Cultural Exchange!

Let's Discover India!

India is a land full of colours, traditions, and stories. Known as one of the world's oldest civilisations, it is a place where ancient heritage and modern life come together.

Through this cultural exchange, we invite you to explore India's festivals, music, dance, clothing, food, and traditions. From the sparkling lights of Diwali to the joyful colours of Holi, from the spicy flavours of Indian cuisine to the graceful moves of traditional dances, India offers endless wonders to discover.

This experience will help us learn not only about India's culture but also about the importance of respecting and celebrating diversity around the world.

Colours of India's wardrobe

Traditional clothes in India are full of bright colours and patterns! Women often wear the sari — a long, elegant piece of cloth wrapped around the body — while men may wear a kurta, a long shirt, with pants. Turbans and embroidery add even more style. Clothing changes from region to region, making every outfit tell its own story.

Did you know? Red and gold are lucky colours in weddings because they symbolise happiness and good fortune.

The Joy of Indian Festivals

India loves to celebrate! Diwali, the Festival of Lights, fills the night with candles, fireworks, and joy. Holi, the Festival of Colours, covers everyone with bright powders. These and many other festivals bring people together to share traditions and happiness throughout the year.

Did you know? India has hundreds of festivals each year — there's always something to celebrate!

Sacred Friends of India

Animals are very special in India. The cow is respected as a gentle symbol of life and kindness. Elephants represent wisdom and strength, and often wear colourful decorations during festivals. Monkeys, peacocks, and even snakes are also part of myths and traditions.

Did you know? The peacock is India's national bird, famous for its dazzling feathers!

The Flavours of India

Indian food is colourful, tasty, and full of spices! Dishes like curry, rice, and naan bread are enjoyed every day. Spices such as turmeric, cumin, and cardamom give food its rich flavors and aromas. With so many spices, every meal is like a new adventure for the taste buds.

Did you know? India produces more spices than any other country in the world!

Treasures of Indian Architecture

India's buildings show its history and creativity. The Taj Mahal, made of shining white marble, is one of the most famous monuments in the world — a symbol of love built by Emperor Shah Jahan for his wife. Across the country, temples, palaces, and step-wells display art, devotion, and tradition.

Did you know? The Taj Mahal changes colour with the sunlight, from pink in the morning to golden at sunset!

Objective!

Our school's cultural discussion promotes diversity, heritage, and language use. By exploring India's culture in English, we emphasise the power of language as a bridge between traditions and communities. This project fosters inclusion, creativity, and respect across our school.
